Trustees to Buy New School Site

Condemnation action to acquire nearly nine acres for a South Torrance school site was ordered by the Board of Education Monday.

The property, located at Arlington Avenue and 231st Street, is adjacent to a 1.5-acre city sump which eventually will become a part of the school site.

The site is needed to meet future enrollments in the area now served by the Adams and Howard Wood schools. Both are near capacity and no additional room for buildings is left on the two campuses.

THE NEW school will be masterplanned to incorporate the sump area, which may be available in about three years, in the school site. At the time the sump becomes available, a two-acre area fronting on Arlington Avenue may be sold.

A total of five homes occupy part of the site at the present time.

IN OTHER action, trustees: Voted to impose a charge on candidates in the April 18 election for statements of qualifications to be mailed to voters. Candidates will be charged a pro rata share of the cost of printing and mailing such statements.

Deferred final action on the calendar for the 1967-68 school year until an adjustment is made to start summer school at mid-week. The adjustment will eliminate the necessity of hiring principals and teachers for two days in August, 1968.

Approved a blanket resolution which will permit the district to invest surplus funds in short-term treasury bills on the request of the superintendent. Prior to this, the board has had to approve each investment.

Authorized high school bands to participate in the St. Patrick's Day Parade slated in Torrance March 18, provided the individual bands wish to participate.

Approved, in principle, a Youth Forum program being considered by the city's Youth Welfare Commission. Trustees asked members of the commission to approach each of the individual student councils.
